Abby enjoys her work with a wide variety of corporate clients, providing guidance and support on issues from estate and succession planning to financial and real estate transactions to commercial litigation.

She counsels multi-generational businesses and families with inherited wealth in the areas of wealth preservation and estate planning and administration.

She also works with leading institutions in structuring and documenting secured transactions and enforcing those whenever necessary.

Abby's goal is to provide her clients with solutions to commercial disputes without litigation whenever possible, whether that means identifying potential issues before they arise or finding positive solutions before litigation agreements in court becomes necessary.
