Chris Kamath, a partner at Gislason & Hunter LLP, focuses his practice in the areas of trusts and estates, business and corporate law and real estate. As a member of our Estate Planning Practice Group, he routinely guides clients through complex family dynamics, tax and business succession issues. Representative clients include individuals, farmers, closely-held businesses and large manufacturing companies.

Chris started his professional career in business before deciding to pursue a law degree. His clients appreciate his ability to wear both a legal hat and a business hat when recommending a clear path forward.

His transactional practice includes the preparation of wills, trusts and related documents; financing documents such as loan, mortgage, subordination and line of credit agreements; real estate purchase agreements; business formation documents, corporation resolutions, buy-sell agreements, merger agreements and more.

Chris's experience in the courtroom ranges from routine estate administrations to contested probates, will contests and trust disputes. His litigation experience gives him a unique perspective that allows him to better structure estate plans and transactions so as to mitigate costly disputes on the back end.
