Samantha is an associate attorney based out of Gislason and Hunter's New Ulm office focusing her practice on bankruptcy, agriculture law and commercial litigation. She is dedicated to understanding the needs of each client and advocating for them accordingly.

Samantha is a cum laude graduate of Duquesne University School of Law, where she served as an Associate Editor for the Duquesne Law Review. While in law school, she gained valuable legal and bankruptcy experience interning for two different bankruptcy judges. She also participated as a student attorney for the unemployment compensation clinic and earned a CALI Excellence for the Future Award for receiving the highest grade in Food Law and Policy class. She received her Bachelor of Arts, magna cum laude, from St. Cloud State University.

Samantha is thrilled to be one of the newest members of the New Ulm community. Outside of the office, she enjoys spending time on the family farm in southeast Minnesota, biking with her husband Michael and playing with her dog Otis.
