Alexander Asawa practices law in the areas of agriculture and agribusiness, business and corporate law, family law, finance and banking, litigation and trusts and estates. He views the practice of law both in terms of seeking justice but also bringing value. As an attorney, Alexander is passionate about being able to provide answers for his clients and ultimately deliver positive resolutions.

Throughout his life, Alexander has played team sports. He learned that being a good teammate means not only working hard but most importantly listening and making the effort to really understand your teammates' perspective. He puts that philosophy to work in his legal practice as well. He believes it is important to know the law and construct strong arguments and terms, but it is equally as important to listen and understand clients' perspectives and goals.

In his spare time, Alexander enjoys cooking, fishing, video games and board games.
