Adam Froehlich practices law in a variety of areas including agribusiness, business and corporate law, finance and banking, general counsel services, litigation and real estate, environmental law and land use. Adam pursued a legal career because he is passionate about solving problems, resolving conflict and contributing to the legal framework which holds our world together.

Through his legal education and prior experience in the healthcare and public safety sectors, Adam has developed excellent analysis, communication and problem-solving skills, which allow him to provide a high-level of detail-oriented client service in seeking just outcomes, achieving client goals and maximizing value.

In his spare time, Adam enjoys watching college sports (go Hawkeyes!)—particularly football and wrestling—spending time outdoors, being with family and listening to podcasts.
